THE GAZETTE'S PRIZE STORY.

A Critical Opinion—The Verdict of "The Censor"—What the Farragont says.

The San Francisco Farragont recently devoted a large portion of its space to a critical review of the Gazette's great prize story, "Married by Will," or "The Millionaire's Mandate," by Blue Jay Page, which appeared in the Gazette last week. It is a glowing eulogy upon this great production of the "Dickens of the Sierra." Here follows the entire review as it appeared in the Farragont:

We have always predicted that some day would be born on the Pacific coast a prince among novelists; that under the shadow of the majestic rock-ribbed Sierra would one day be written a story of human passion that would be a revelation of man's capacity for joy and sorrow, a tale which would lay bare the hidden sources of every emotion that can agitate the human heart. We did not hope to live long enough to witness the fulfillment of our prophecy, but we have in the tale which lies before us the verification of our augury. We hesitate to review this great creation; we can simply attempt to place some of its finest passages before our readers, and humbly and reverently call their attention to the depth and power of the author. There is the whole of an ordinary novel in the very title of this story—"Married by Will, or The Millionaire's Mandate." Mark well the name of the author, Blue Jay Page. Not the name of any foreigner, not an Irish, nor a German, nor an English name, but a native born American cognomen. There is a deep significance in that name. But we must pass to the consideration of the work itself. Here is a lofty creation of the imagination, at once perfect in incident and great in plot. Here is pathos, at once profound and tender. And here the highest nobility of character and the lowest depth of wickedness. The plan of the story is cosmopolitan. The scene is laid nowhere in particular. The tale is suited to any climate, to any age or country. The story opens with "The death scene."

"The village bell has just tolled the hour of seven. The dying man turned on his pillow and said: 'My son, my own dear boy, if I could but have the pleasure of once more feasting my eyes on your noble and manly form!'"

We feel that we are in the presence of death. Oh! the baseness that could trifle with the dying father's heart. Yet there is such depravity. An impostor enters; but a father's eye detects him. He speaks:

"You are an impostor; you are not my son. If you are my son you have a birth mark that can never be erased. Bare your right arm that I may convince myself of what I already know." The man no sooner heard this than he turned on his heel and fled, not one knew whither. He had hardly time to leave the grounds before the true son and heir bounded into the room. Far different was the effect of his person on the dying man.

He is recognized, and the old man dies happy. These are his noble last words:

"Look, all of you, and behold my son, and hear to my vast fortune. All my real and personal property I bequeath to my son, with the exception of one thousand dollars I donate as a gift to charitable institutions."

Mark the profound insight into human nature displayed in this clause of the old gentleman's will:

"Another command to my son is that he goes forth with and marries a poor girl, if a beggar, for the lesson of adversity will make her a good and frugal wife, not one that wants fine jewelry, and wants to go traveling and have a knowledge of all things pertaining to high life. Her former poor life and way of living will make her own home better than traveling, and make him more contented and happy. Her dependence on him will make her love him all the better."

The agony and fidelity of the son are depicted in a few powerful lines:

"When his first fit of grief was over, he knelt by the bedside of the dead man and swore as far as he was concerned he would live up to the dictates of the will left by his father, even to marrying a poor girl. He, like a good many young men, had formed the acquaintance of a most beautiful and accomplished young lady, five years his junior. His first step after his father had been laid to rest in the family vault, was to ask his betrothed to release him from his engagement, as it was out of his power to fulfill it. He had to pay her a few thousand dollars to heal her wounded affections. Now that that matter was settled, he was free again to marry whom he pleased. Fully five months had expired before an opportunity offered itself in the matrimonial way."

The italics are all ours. What deadly sarcasm in those words: "to heal her wounded affections."

Some months pass, and a beggar girl comes to the gate. The young man remembers his vow and asks the poor girl to dine with him. The dining room scene, where he wins the orphan's love, is beautifully portrayed:

"After a good deal of persuasion and a little forcing the girl complied with his request. After partaking of the meal she was about starting when he said to her:

"My good girl, since I prevailed on you to have some dinner, cannot I prevail on you to be my wife?"

If you mean it, sir, I will, as I have to tell you for that short time I have been with you I feel as if I could love you the whole of my life.

I know you will my dear little wife.

He sent for a minister and the marriage knot was tied.

Our author's method is that of Shakespeare. The action of the tale never halts. The young husband tires of his wife and "wishes for a change scenes and faces." This so preyed on his mind that at last he decided to leave, and calling his wife to him one day, said to her:

"My dear little wife I have to leave, some very important business calls me away for a short time."

How like the husband of our coast! He sails away, and his evanescent plots to get possession of the estate. Two of the farm hands "aid him in conceiving the idea of taking his mistress away to a woods that was a great distance off. The woods were a kind of maze. When a person was taken into them they would have to be taken out or he could never find the way out again. So they took her to the place and left her without a particle of food and scarcely enough clothing to cover her person."

In this forlorn situation she becomes "the mother of an infant whose mother was a maniac, and as such knew no knowledge of the wants of her newly born babe. Although being born under difficulties, the boy, being such, was a fine child. But a deer took the place of a foster mother to it, and would lie in such a position 'that the child could nurse from her.'"

The introduction of the deer marks the genius of the author.

The mother drags out a miserable existence in the woods, at times "eating the grass under her feet."

"Now to return to the young husband. He wandered from place to place, but all seemed alike to him. There was no place like home. So he decided to return to it. He made a quick passage and arrived in safety. The first thing on reaching home was to ask the foreman where his wife was.

"Your wife, sir, died one month after you left home."

Such being the case he thought the best way to banish trouble was to go out on a hunt."

Some mysterious impulse leads him to the wood. The meeting between the pair is described in a manner worthy of Mrs. Eden Mouthworth. After the sad tragedy, comes the masterly conclusion of the story:

"He dismounted and crept up to the place, expecting to find some game, when he may expect the surprise he got upon seeing his wife. He exclaimed:

"My Wife!!"

"Husband!!!"

And dropped dead at his feet. He was nearly crazed with grief, and picking the body up returned home and had her buried near his father. The two men confessed all, and he ordered them to take the foreman out into the woods and kill him. This they done. The husband took the child and placed it in a home for children, and left all his money in its name.

"Tell them, if it ever asks for his parents, to say they are dead."

After having done this he said: "I can never live here!"

Took one last look at the resting place of his father and wife, and departed, no one knows where, and has not been heard from since. So ends this tale, proving the old adage of "All's wrong that ends wrong."

A CHILD'S HISTORY OF MONEY.

In the early days of the world, when men used to flap away flies with their ears, there was no money. Then, when a man wanted anything from his neighbor, he gave some other thing for it. If one had too much meat, and wanted more spears or arrows, he made a trade with some other man that wanted meat, and had plenty of spears and arrows. This kind of trading or exchange is now called barter. As the world grew older, and more men came into it, they had more wants. They learned to eat a great many kinds of food, and got a habit of wearing clothes and living in tents and huts. The more wants they had, the harder it was to meet them by barter. One man might have plenty of sheep and goats, but want a horse. Perhaps the only man that had a horse also had plenty of sheep and goats. The owner of the horse would not, in such a case, part with him for any number of sheep or goats. So the man that wanted the horse would have to go without. In the course of time men learned the use of metals. They noticed that, while iron and some other metals were found in plenty, gold and silver were very scarce and hard to get. Gold and silver are bright and pretty metals and do not rust. Savages, as wild men are called, are pleased with pretty things. Whenever they found a piece of gold or silver they picked it up and kept it. They hung pieces of gold or silver in their ears, through their lips and noses, and around their necks. They grew fond of such ornaments, so that a man who had a piece of silver or gold could easily get for it some food or clothing, or weapons in exchange. This was because food and clothing were easily got, and gold and silver hard to find. In this way gold and silver, the precious, or scarce metals, came to be highly prized.

As more and more men came upon the earth their wants got to be very many. They moved about from place to place and saw everywhere many new things that they wanted. And everywhere gold and silver were scarce and highly prized, while common things were plenty. So that if a man carried gold or silver with him he could always get what he wanted in exchange for some. At first these metals were carried in rough lumps, but after a time they were made into pieces or coins of regular size. As men grew less savage they did not care so much for gold and silver ornaments, but still wanted something to take the place of barter. They had got used to look upon the scarce and pretty metals as precious things. So they kept on trading food and useful things for gold and silver. It had grown into a custom. Men did not want to go back to barter. So they kept right on giving goods for the precious metals. They never stopped to think what gold and silver were good for. They didn't care. People went on buying and selling things for coins or money for a great many hundred years, without caring anything about the reason why; and there are a good many men that don't know yet. When men stopped to think about it they found money so useful and so easy to trade with that nobody complained. And so it has been kept in use down to this day.

This simple little story about money shows that gold and silver came to have their buying power because they were very scarce metals. That is still the reason why men will give bread and meat for gold and silver. A great deal of silver and gold is dug out of the earth now in a single year. But shared among all the people in the world, it wouldn't give them more than ten cents apiece. A great deal of money is lost and worn out, and much silver used up in making forks and spoons and dishes. So that, from year to year, there is dug up just about enough scarce metals to meet the growing wants of the world.

Suppose that some one should discover a way of making silver out of earth, and that everybody found out how to make silver. At once, everywhere, all over the world, everybody would be making silver. What would happen? Would a man give good bread or meat any longer for silver when he could make silver himself out of dirt? Of course not. Silver would no longer be a scarce, or in other words, a precious metal. Would a man any longer do a day's work for a few little pieces of silver, when he could make a bushel of that metal for himself by a few hours' labor. He would be a fool if he did, certainly. It is clear, then, that the precious metals are only precious because they are scarce. If they ceased to be hard to get they would lose their value as money.

NEW USES FOR WHISKEY.

Among the distressing afflictions which a nervous person can draw upon himself is a pair of squeaky shoes. Humanity has for many generations suffered untold miseries from squeaky leather. The noise of complaining shoes is most distressing to the wearer. If he walks up the long aisle of a church, the whole edifice seems to him to resound with the noise from his shrieking soles. We have heard of a number of remedies for the relief of the affliction. One is to drive a row of wooden pegs down the middle of each sole. The theory of this treatment is that the squeak is caused by the friction of the different pieces of leather composing the sole, and that the pegs will prevent them from moving over each other. The peg remedy would appear to be rational. But we have been told of another and infallible cure. It is whiskey. The whiskey is to be poured into the noisy shoe, and left there until absorbed. A good drink to each shoe. This alcoholic treatment is said to lull the squeak into an eternal sleep. And whiskey, it is said, poured upon a tight boot will make it easy to the foot. Not merely a temporary relief, but a stretching of the leather so as to make a permanent cure, will follow the application. In Bayard Taylor's "Views Afoot," he mentions that he always carried some whiskey with him to pour into his shoes when his feet got sore, and by its use was enabled to walk long distances without suffering. We would recommend a trial of the whiskey treatment for these pedal troubles. It may be as good for the feet as it is bad for the head.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Sacramento Bee has this: The poor people of the nation, however, knew Sherman only too well as the agent of Wall street, whose financial policy almost bankrupted the country.

Intelligent people knew that Sherman's financial policy has safely piloted the business of the country out of the sea of inflation. If the Bee had observed the signs of the times in the East, it would know that as a consequence of Sherman's financial policy business is everywhere improving, manufactures reviving, and a more confident tone prevailing in financial circles.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: We were shown yesterday a fig grown on the premises of Mr. McCormick. It would undoubtedly have come to perfection if it had not been pulled in its infancy. Almonds of a superior quality come to maturity in Salt Lake, and we see no reason why figs cannot be raised here.

The Silver State says: Quite a large fleet of mountain clippers, some of which were prevented by stress of weather from starting yesterday, left to-day for Silver City, heavily loaded. Among them were three of George Baker's, loaded with 70,000 pounds; one of Peter Rak's, loaded with 20,000 pounds; and two of Wallace & McDonald's teams, loaded with 40,000 pounds.

The board of education ought to understand that parents are getting heartily tired of those constantly recurring changes in the text books prescribed for use in the public schools of Nevada. Many of them cannot understand how the children are to be benefited by these changes, though all can readily see how publishers profit by them.—Silver State.

The News says that at the Masonic ball in Bodie "The music was placed at the side in the centre."

The real "varnished hack, imported from Oakland," now whirles the Bodie belles to balls in a whirl of eclat.

Bodie has "as elegantly and fashionably dressed cortege of the female sex" as any town on the coast, boasts the News.

Bernard McKinstry, formerly of Virginia, shot himself in Portland, Oregon, on the 8th inst. His wound is considered fatal.

Hot, cold and shower baths at all hours at Coleman & Peckner's, on Virginia street.

Says the Bulletin: The Salt Lake Tribune also has a Leadville correspondent, and we are credibly informed a fair and competent expert. This correspondent says: "The Leadville district has fifteen smelting works, with an aggregate capacity of 900 tons per day, while the total capacity of the mines opened thus far is only 342 tons per day; the bulk of the ore is very low grade and has not an average of more than fifteen per cent. of lead, and that fifty tons of bullion (base) per day will exhaust the deposits in a year." That statements so at variance are copied unchallenged by the press at large as news, betrays a very chaotic idea of precious metal mining.

JOTTINGS.

The streets are drying up. — Weather warm and beautiful. — Yesterday was the Catholic feast of Corpus Christi. — A coat of paint is being put on Barnett's block. — This season's apples and new tomatoes have made their appearance in market. — A substantial plank sidewalk has been laid in front of Pechner's tailor shop. It is a great improvement.

The Arcade to Open Monday.

Dave McFarland is fitting up the Arcade in splendid style. The bar and fixtures are elegant and costly, and the billiard parlors are furnished with three of Jacob Strahle & Co.'s fine tables. Uncle Dave says he will be ready to open Saturday night, but will not do so, as the majority of his customers belong to the Reform club, and might get so excited playing on the new table that their presence would be missed from church Sunday. For this reason the opening will be deferred until Monday, when the Hyers combination will be its first guests.

No Joe Murphy in Reno.

The Joe Murphy combination troupe that was billed to appear in Reno has come to grief. Financial troubles in California and the passage of the new constitution forced the combination to dissolve. The troupe disbanded at Sacramento, and Reno will not see Murphy.

A Runaway in the Street.

A span of horses attached to a wagon got frightened in front of the Farmers' store this morning, and ran away. They ran around into second street and brought up against a high board fence, breaking the wagon tongue and neck yoke, and doing some damage to the fence.

Liquidated in Full.

Rev. A. Drahm requests the Gazette to say that the full amount due him as pastor of the Congregational church has been liquidated, for which he returns sincere thanks.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

RENO TO CELEBRATE THE NATION'S BIRTHDAY WITH APPROPRIATE CEREMONIES.

The Programme—Orations, Reading of the Declaration—Grand Parade, Fireworks, Sports.

At the Fourth of July meeting last night L. J. Flint was called to the chair. A. A. Evans, chairman of the committee of arrangements, reported that the committee had succeeded in getting subscriptions to the amount of $839. The report was accepted and the committee discharged. A motion was made and carried that the chair appoint a committee of seven to act as an executive committee. The chair then appointed Charles Knust, A. A. Evans, D. McFarland, C. A. Bragg, N. C. There will also be a foot race for boys between the ages of 12 and 15, free for all, for a gold pen and holder, donated for the purpose by Judge Bowker. A fine fire trumpet, costing $40, will be awarded to the engine company making the best play, two or more companies to compete. Many things of minor importance remain to be arranged. The committee was still in session when this report was written, therefore the latest proceedings cannot be given.

H. M. S. Pinafore.

The theatre goers of Reno will be delighted to learn that the Hyers Sisters will appear at Kimball's hall, Friday evening June 20th, in the musical and dramatic extravaganza "H. M. S. Pinafore," which is just now all the rage with the theatre going public throughout the east. The former performance of this company here is a sufficient guarantee of what this one will be, and wherever they have appeared in "Pinafore" the press have showered compliments upon them. All the necessary paraphernalia for putting this piece on the stage will be brought along, and a rare musical and dramatic treat is promised.

A Handsome Piece of Workmanship. J. J. Becker has received a fine new counter for his bar in the Steele & Becker block. It is 22 feet long, and was made to order by Hoy & Haller at the Verdi planing mills. The design is neat and artistic and the mechanical finish is excellent. It is of pine with a three-inch walnut top. Altogether it is as fine a piece of workmanship as can be seen anywhere.

On the Installation Plan.

Singer Sewing Machines, the best in the world, at reduced prices. Sold for ten dollars cash, and five dollars per month until paid for, at Davidson's, two doors west of the postoffice. June 13

BY TELEGRAPH.

THE POINT BREEZE FIRE.

A Whole Town Wrapped in Flames.

Indians Make a Bloody Raid in Northern Texas.

GEN. GRANT WRITES THAT HE WANTS NO DISPLAY.

The Fire at Point Breeze.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—The coal oil depot at Point Breeze is again burning. The works were yesterday struck by lightning and the resulting fire did great damage. To-day the fire is raging with redoubled fury. The whole town is now enveloped in flame. A number of vessels in the stream have been consumed and more are in danger. The destruction of property will be very great.

An Indian Raid.

[Special to the Gazette.] NEW YORK, June 13.—The Indians have made a raid in northern Texas. They killed a woman and her son. A number of white men afterwards attacked the Indian camp but were repulsed after a desperate fight. Great excitement and alarm in that section. Settlers are leaving their homes.

What Grant Says.

[Special to the Gazette.] WASHINGTON, June 13.—A telegram to Philadelphia press says that Grant, in a letter from Siam, alludes to some paragraphs that he had seen in files of American papers about the political demonstration in honor of his return to the United States. He writes that, although he is always sensible of the approval of his fellow citizens, any formal display that might be construed into a movement for political purposes would not be agreeable to him.

STABBING AFFRAY.

Two Draymen Get to Fighting, and One Stabs the Other.

An affray occurred in the Arcade saloon about 3 o'clock this afternoon, in which M. T. Barnett stabbed A. L. Hurd in the region of the right kidney, wounding him quite severely. Both the men are draymen, and the difficulty grew out of some squabble about freight. Some angry words passed between them in the saloon, which resulted in Hurd, who is much the larger man of the two, striking Barnett in the face with his fist and knocking him down. Hurd attempted to kick Barnett after he was down, but was restrained by some of the workmen employed in the building. Barnett arose with a large pocket knife in his hand, and gave Hurd one stab with it. A Gazette reporter visited Hurd at his house, and got from him his version of the difficulty, which is materially as above narrated. He said he had no intention of prosecuting Barnett, and up to the hour of writing no arrests had been made. Dr. Bergman, who is attending on the wounded man, says he had not yet determined how serious the wound is. Everything depends upon whether the knife touched the kidneys or not.

New Patents.

Dewy & Co's Scientific Press Patent Agency has received official notice of the issue of the following patents to Pacific coast inventors, for the week ending June 3d, 1879:

No. 216,140, B. B. Brewer and B. B. Ward, Sacramento, Cal., hydraulic propeller; No. 216,089, L. Herbert and W. V. Henry, Hicksville, Cal., horse-power; No. 216,098, D. and T. Morris, S. F., door-knob attachment; No. 8,740, N. Seibert S. F., lubricator (reissue); No. 216,244, John B. Ward, S. F., screw propeller; No. 216,061, S. W. Shaw, S. F., dredging-scoop nozzle; No. 216,150, Ger. H. Clark, Portland, Ogn., corset; No. 216,148, D. W. Brunton, Silver Peak, Nev., ore-roasting furnace.

A Boy's Daring Act.

Late yesterday afternoon a horse belonging to L. W. Lee, started to run away with a light wagon with a small boy in it, near the court house. Grant Rice, a fifteen or sixteen years of age, bravely seized the horse by the bridle, and finally succeeded in stopping him after being dragged some distance. The boy was badly bruised all over his person, but fortunately was not seriously injured.

The Adventures of a Cow.

A brindle cow jumped over into a garden in the Western addition, eat 300 rods of clothes line, turned over sixteen bee-hives, swallowed the pump and stood on her head in the well; that is, she might have done it but she didn't. To keep posted about such things subscribe for the Weekly Gazette, price $3 50 a year.

M. P. Freeman, the well known Elko banker, went through last night en route for home.

P. Liepenfeld, the San Francisco billiard manufacturer, is in town seeing about putting up the tables in Scott & Keeler's parlor.

Talk is Cheap.

And so are fine clothing, boots, shoes and gentlemen's and boys' fine furnishings goods, if you go to the right place to get them. This is a mighty important point for some people who assert that they sell cheap do nothing of the kind. We do not boast when we say that we defy competition in prices in anything in our line. Besides this we have only one price. We have no preferred customers. Everybody is treated alike at our establishment. Our stock is the largest and most complete ever offered in any part of this state. Everything we have is new, no old, musty, and out-of-date goods can be found on our shelves. We receive daily by rail and express the latest and best goods, which are obtained at first hand and sold at prices below those now prevailing in New York and Chicago. Let the people come and judge of our prices, and examine our stock before going into those humbugging, Cheap John shops, in which they drum into the ear of the customer that they sell at cost and even below cost. Anybody with common sense must know that they lie. No store-keeper sells goods for the fun of the thing. We make a profession of everything we sell, as every honest merchant does, and don't print foolish falsehoods in the vain hope of deceiving the public. We particularly call attention to our full stock of fancy underwear, such as is kept nowhere else in Reno. This class of goods forms one of our specialties. Remember the place, the White House, No. 19 Commercial Row.

Orders from the country promptly attended to.

Insurance.

We desire to say to our insurance patrons and owners of property generally that we have secured the services of Mr. T. B. Camp, a professional insurance man who has had several years practical experience in the business and is thoroughly posted in all its details. He will give his entire time and attention to insurance, thus securing care and skill in the writing of policies, so as to properly cover the risks, which is of great importance, as many sufferers by the late fire may recall, as it might have saved them hundreds of dollars in the adjustment of losses. We shall issue policies and adjust losses at our office. D. A. BENDER & Co., my 31 m Agents.

No War! No Sacrifice!

But always the sledge hammer on high prices. From the very day I opened I sold the very goods which are advertised at panic prices, for 25 per cent. less than are now offered by the noble warriors; farther more I do not offer a few articles as a bait, but I sell all my goods for less than ever heard of this side of the Rocky mountains. All who have traded with me can testify to the truth of the above, and those who have never yet traded with me I most cordially invite to be convinced.

LEGAL NOTICES.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE Second Judicial District of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe. The State of Nevada sends to Arden Jones greeting: You are hereby required to appear in an action commenced against you as defendant by Jemima Jones as plaintiff in the District Court of the Second Judicial District, in and for the county of Washoe, State of Nevada, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons, (exclusive of the day of service), if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said district, and in all other cases forty days; or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant. Plaintiff alleges: That plaintiff and defendant intermarried at Mono county, California, on or about July 26th, A. D. 1873, and ever since have been and now are husband and wife; that on or about September 24th, A. D. 1873, you, the defendant, willfully deserted and abandoned plaintiff, and ever since have continued to do so, and now continue to desert, abandon and live apart from the plaintiff against her will, wish or consent; that for more than a year preceding the commencement of this action you, the defendant, have failed and neglected and now do fail and neglect to provide for the plaintiff the common necessities of life, which neglect is and was not the result of poverty on your part, which you could not have avoided by ordinary industry; that there are no children living of the said matrimony and no common property; Plaintiff prays to be restored to her maiden name and for costs, all of which will more fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the clerk of said District Court at Reno, in said county. And you are further notified, that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.

In testimony whereof, I, P. B. COMSTOCK, Clerk of the District Court of the Second Judicial District, Nevada, in and for Washoe county, do hereby certify the seal of said Court this sixth day of December, A. D. 1873.

WHY STAY POOR?

Prospecting often Pays; Idleness Never. The millions of the Comstock were a lucky find. Worthless looking rock is often rich in treasure. At Leadville a simple assay made millionsaires of many. Other bonanzas were least suspected await the coming of some unknown man. Who is he? At Virginia City, Nevada, assays for Gold and Silver are made at $1.00 per sample, by CONRAD WIEGAND, formerly of Reno, Washoe county, assayer of the U. S. Mint at San Francisco. The mail will carry ore samples to his office for one cent per ounce. Reports which may be relied on absolutely, come back by return mail, or results are telegraphed when ordered so. All costs, delays and risks in remitting money are avoided by the purchase of our Dollar Remittance Tickets, which pay for all work done in our establishment. We sell these prepaid tickets at a discount, when $3 worth or more are ordered at one time. Small sacks for mailing ore samples also for sale at a nominal price. For further information address C. WIEGAND & CO., Assayers, Virginia City, Nevada.
